

Washington State Genealogical Society

recognizes

Phyllis (Joyce) Barnett

of Wenatchee, Washington for exceptional and consistent support of the goals and operation of Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society

Whether jumping in with both feet or from the frying pan into the fire, Phyllis Barnett is all that is good in a volunteer. From the time she joined Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society in 2004, she has put in numerous hours on many projects; some of which had been neglected over the past few years. Whether it is general cleaning and upkeep of the library, organizing and working on scrapbooks, or helping Edith Clarida to rebind hundreds of journals and bulletins, you can count on seeing Phyllis, with her twinkling eyes and smile, encouraging us all. As Library Chair she keeps the librarians updated on library procedures, computer changes and plans, and then keeps track of all of their hours. She has been instrumental in organizing or helping with special projects, including the Society's 2009 Open House, the Wenatchee Valley Museum and Cultural Center's Spring Tea in 2010 and, as co-chair, the Society's exhibit for the museum's Cultural Fair. Even when on her winter vacation in California she will be in contact with board members and do indexing, proofing or working on scrapbooks, etc. We greatly appreciate the time and extra effort she puts into all she does, and take pride in recognizing Phyllis Barnett with this Outstanding Volunteer award.

Given this 17th day of September in the year 2011, at the annual meeting of Washington State Genealogical Society at Richland, Washington.
