Peggy Hoaglin
of Wenatchee, Washington

for exceptional and consistent support of the goals and operation of Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society

Peggy Hoaglin's 1984 visit to the Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society (WAGS) Library proved to be such a pleasant experience, she chose to become involved herself. Since then she has been a tireless worker for the Society, taking on tasks as varied as routine cleaning to complete, thorough inventories of the library collection. Appointed as Chief Librarian, she has helped develop an excellent collection of genealogical materials of all sorts. Peggy warmly greets patrons, determines the areas and names they are researching, and helps them find valuable material in the library and elsewhere. She invites patrons to become WAGS members and, regardless, to use the library often. Peggy greets most returning guests by name and has an exceptional memory for the family research materials of the library collection. For more than 20 years, Peggy has worked tirelessly to expand and improve the WAGS Library and to provide the best assistance possible to its patrons.

Given this 23rd day of April in the year 2005, at the annual meeting of Washington State Genealogical Society at Yakima, Washington.
