

Washington State Genealogical Society recognizes

Anne (Sonney) Livingston

of Wenatchee, Washington for exceptional and consistent support of the goals and operation of Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society

Anne Livingston has distinguished herself in untiring support of the Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society for more than 15 years. She has enhanced the usefulness of the Society's library by developing a modified Dewey Decimal System for the books and periodicals that would not fit with a particular state. She computerized the library's accession sheets, prepared a shelf list, and keeps it current and available to all online at the Society's website and through her Wenatchee Valley College website. She also took on the project of doing a surname index of journals and periodicals in the Society's library. Anne's work in the Wenatchee Valley College Library has made her a wonderful advisor for operation of the Society's library. She is a genealogist extraordinaire, and her generosity with her skills shows her dedication to genealogy and genealogists. She frequently teaches classes and presents programs at many genealogical and historical societies in the region. She also works one evening a week at the Family History Center where she helps many family historians with her expertise. Anne Livingston's combination of knowledge and skills are a rare find and have helped make the Wenatchee Area Genealogical Society successful.

Given this 8th day of April in the year 2006, at the annual meeting of Washington State Genealogical Society at Olympia, Washington.
